

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

PREFACE.

THE general plan of this volume is the same as that of my Index published in 1888, a portion of the Preface to which is now reprinted. In one respect, however, this volume differs, not in plan, but in result, from the former; and that is it contains many more references to articles relating to Legal Science in general, and many more references to articles relating to Political Science, to Economics, and to Sociology; for in the years since the former Index was compiled, the Bar Associations organized in many States have published a great number of addresses, papers, and reports upon general, rather than technical, subjects connected with the law; and since that time also there have appeared numerous periodical publications devoted to subjects which have an important, if not direct, bearing upon Law and Legislation. As Professor Hadley, now President of Yale University, said in a recent address: "The scientific study of the law has had and still has a close affiliation with the scientific study of political economy. This affiliation between economics and jurisprudence is manifest alike in their data, their methods, and their conclusions. The fundamental datum of modern economics is property right. This is also the datum and starting point of a large part of our legal reasoning. The method of the economist is a combination of the historical and the deductive. He studies the precedent by which property right has been established on the one hand, and deduces the consequences arising from such property rights on the other hand. This combination is also characteristic of the methods of the Judiciary; the chief difference between economists and court being that the economist considers how the individual judgment will act under the given conditions, while the court considers how the public judgment will act."

The scope of the present Index is therefore somewhat wider than that of the first volume. It includes articles upon Law, Legislation, Political Science, Economics, Sociology, and Legal Biography in all journals in the English language published since the beginning of the year 1887 down to the beginning of the present year.

I wish to acknowledge my great indebtedness to Miss Clara Farnham, who, under my supervision, collected and arranged the material not only of the present volume, but also of the first volume, and has corrected the proof. I could not have undertaken or prosecuted such a laborious undertaking had I not been able to rely upon her care and accuracy.

LEONARD A. JONES.

BOSTON, October 14, 1899.

FROM THE PREFACE TO VOLUME ONE.

I HAVE attempted in this Index to refer to the articles relating to matters of law and legislation contained in the whole body of periodical literature in the English language published prior to January, 1887. To this end I have included references to the articles, papers, correspondence, annotated cases, and biographical notices in the legal journals of America, England, Scotland, Ireland, and the English Colonies; and to such articles in the principal literary reviews and magazines of these countries as seemed to belong properly to legal literature. I have also included references to the papers and proceedings of the American Bar Association, and of the various State Bar Associations; and also references to such of the papers and transactions of the English and American Social Science Associations, and of the Statistical Society, as seemed to come within the scope of this Index.

I have given much attention to references to biographical articles relating to distinguished judges and lawyers, both living and deceased. Accordingly, such notices in all the journals and reviews, which seemed to be of value, even when brief, have been referred to. Moreover, all the reports of the American courts, some three thousand volumes, have been examined volume by volume, in order to make references to the proceedings in court and eulogies upon the occasion of the decease of eminent judges and lawyers. Generally, in references to biographical notices, the date of the birth and of the death (of deceased persons) is given after the names, thus serving to identify those referred to, and at the same time to afford in the Index itself this item of information. . . .

Of course the editor has been obliged to use his discretion in selecting the articles to be indexed from the periodicals which publish many short articles. In many instances brief articles have been referred to because they seemed to be of value, while others of sufficient length to be referred to have been omitted because they seemed to be of merely temporary or local interest. It was thought better, however, to err by including unimportant articles, than to err in omitting those of value.

I commenced this work with the conviction that a great store of papers and articles was hidden and neglected in the legal journals and reviews which could be made valuable to lawyers and legislators by an index. Now, at the completion of the work, after a hasty examination of the whole mass of this literature, I am more impressed with its practical usefulness. Many minor topics of the law, which are wholly neglected or only briefly treated in the text-books, are often fully and exhaustively treated in the legal journals by able lawyers. The list of Authors of Articles shows that the great mass of the contributions to these periodicals has been made by lawyers and judges who are not authors of text-books, and who have not published their articles in any other form. I wish particularly to call attention to the valuable papers published by the various Bar Associations and by the Social Science Associations.
